KERRY FARMER

With a background in science as well as humanities, I worked in computer programming before starting teaching family history classes in 1997. I have worked as a genealogy researcher and presented at many family history events in Australia, New Zealand, and the UK.

I have served on SAG's Education Committee since 2004 and now convene that committee as well as serving on the Diploma and Certificate Committee. I joined the SAG Board in 2018. I am also Director of Australian Studies for the National Institute for Genealogical Studies.

I authored DNA for Genealogists (2011) and Arrivals in Australia from 1788 (2015) as well as various genealogical Handy Guides for Unlock the Past.
